

HISTORIC MEETS HIP

The tree-lined stretch of Pine Street from Broad to 9th streets is home to Historic Antique Row, the nation's oldest continuous antiques district. Discerning collectors will find shops brimming with historical and vintage American and European furnishings, décor, jewelry and objets d'art. Alongside the antiques mainstays, the street also boasts a spate of sophisticated contemporary boutiques offering exquisite linens, retro home accessories, high-end handbags, classic toys, and one-of-a-kind crafts by local artisans. Best of all, it's typical to find the shop owners manning the counters, eager to discuss their carefully-selected wares. History buffs and hipsters alike are sure to find something to suit their tastes in this charming shopping destination.—Karen Gross

RAISE YOUR GLASS

Whether or not you're a wine connoisseur, it's worth a stop at Pinot—a gorgeous boutique that sells all things vino except the wine (227 Market St., 215-627-9463). Sterling corkscrews, imported wine racks, and luxury glasses will spruce up anyone's wine collection. Perfectly fine with your own accoutrements? Pick up a jar of Pinot's house-made chocolate sauce. Perfect for hot fudge sundaes and strawberry dipping. It's definitely something to write home about.—Meredith B. Lindemon

TIP OF THE MONTH

Head to Robinson Luggage (201 S. Broad St., 215-735-9859) for top-notch travel gear, like fine's brushed cotton bags (pictured). At Tumi in the King of Prussia Mall, you'll find luxurious luggage, stylish totes, and travel-sized toiletry bottles to hold body wash, shampoo, and lotion (760 N. Gulph Road, 610-265-1880).
